BRATTLEBORO. Frank Wood of Charlestown, N. H., has recently bought 2000 lambs from several towns in this county.

One of the most desirable residences in Brattleboro is offered for sale by Ross White in an advertisement in another column:

Brattleboro boys are interested in the announcement that the annual foot ball game between Harvard and Yale will be dayed on Hampden park at Springfield. Mass., for the next four years, on the Saturday previous to Thanksgiving. Our Northfield correspondent gives the particulars of the shocking accident which resulted in the death of Willie Reed, the nine-year-old son of George Reed, the Brattleboro lumber dealer. It is probably not generally known that Cross and four off Ferson. The High school foot ball team will play its first regular game with the Keene High school eleven a week from to-morrow. The boys have been practicing regularly and are developing into good players.

Rev. John S. Brown, who was principal of the High school in 1834-5, is now living in Lawrence, Kansas, at the advanced age of 85 years. A letter recently received from him is in a handwriting worthy of a man 40 years younger. A large group picture including nearly all the speedy bicyclists who competed in the recent races at Springfield and Hart-ford is on exhibition in Jeweler Hubbard's window. A collection of photographs of local interest is to be seen in Chapin & Co.'s Each member of the drum corps which assisted in the cavalende on the morning of the second day of the Valley fair, has been presented by the Valley fair association with a photograph of the procession as it appeared on the march through Main street headed by the band and drum corps—a pleasant recognition of services cheerfully rendered without pay.

Who wouldn't live in New England? On Tuesday the temperature here ranged about 48°, while West and South the mercury reached an unusually low point. At Atlanta, Ga., there was a killing frost, with lighter frosts at Wilmington, N. C., and Pensacola, Fla. At Jacksonville, Fla., the temperature was 48° and at New Orleans only 54".

Howard White has challenged Sherburne Barre to another bicycle race on the Valley fair ground track, to take place at an early date, for a prize of $50 to $100 a side. Correspondence in regard to the match is now being exchanged. Brattle-boro boys would like to see a race which will definitely settle the question of superiority, and they believe that barring accidents White is the better rider.

The marriage of Mr. T. Frank Turner and Miss Nellie McMinniman, two well known young people, was celebrated on Tuesday morning at the Roman Catholic church Miss Sadie Turner, sister of the bridegroom, acted as bridemaid, and P. J. Higgins as best man. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of Turner's parents on Elliot street. Mr. and Mrs. Turner took the morning train south and after a short wedding trip will return to Springfield, Mass., where Mr. Turner has recently taken a position as manager of the American House.

It is under the direction of a committee representing pastors, evangelists and city mission workers in the United States and Canada, and will bring together a large number of such workers. Members of all Christian denominations are eligible as delegates. Partienlars with list of subjects and speakers may be obtained of the secretary, Rev. John C Collins, New Haven, Conn. Reduced rail-road and hotel rates will be given.

It will be a pleasant surprise to Brattleboro music lovers to know that the great violinist Remenyi is to be heard once more in Brattleboro, after a lapse of 10 years, and after an absence from this country of several years. His Brattleboro date has en fixed for Thursday evening, Nov. 12. In the American tour, of which this concert forms a part, Remenyi will be supported by the distinguished artists Mrs. Alice Rice, soprano, Miss Edith McGregor, contraito, William H. Fessenden, tenor, and Miss F. Cliff Berry, pianist. It will be interesting to recall in this connection that Remenyi is one of the few men of world-wide note who has had the privilege of reading his own obituaries. This occurred when he was reported to have been drown in the wreck of the vessel on which he had taken passage from India to South Africa, and the fact that he was still alive was not known until six months later, when he arrived safely at the Cape of Good Hope.

Changes and improvements have been made on the second floor of the old Unitarian church building, recently bought the Unitarian society, adapting it to the social uses of the church, and it will soon be ready for occupancy, furnishing cheerful and attractive quarters for various gatherings. The present form is very nearly that of the Kindergarten hall a few years ago.

W. H. Minor has sold his undivided half nterest in the Brattleboro livery company, formerly the Ray stables, to H. M. Adams of Marlboro, who will continue the busiess in company with Dr. Bowen. understood not to be the purpose of Mr. Adams to move to Brattleboro, but he is a young man whom all Brattleboro business men will gladly welcome to their ranks. Clarence Stockwell will continue to be the manager of the business.

One of the most artistic and successful ieces of cabinet work ever done in Brattleboro may now be seen at the Hunter shop on Flat street. It is the work of J. P. Helyar, an Englishman, who has thus abundantly proved his skill and training The piece is a colonial dressing case wrought in mahogany, reproducing to the minutest detail an antique of this kind owned by Robert Gordon Hardie, the artist. Connoisseurs in such work find it a rarely admirable production.

The annual meeting of the Vermont Advent Christian conference was held at Bridgewater last Thursday, continuing Sunday, and was a pleasant gathering of preachers and delegates. At the business session on Saturday, A. W. Clayton of Brattleboro was ordained elder. The following officers elected for one year are: President, A. F. Moore; vice president, A. W. Clayton; secretary, P. G.

Coolidge of Rutland, a brother of H. O. Coolidge of Brattleboro, was also a successful candidate. Young Knight is the great grandson of Chief Justice Samuel Knight, the first lawyer of Brattleboro, who was admitted to the bar in 1772.

Rev. John P. Jones of Madura, India, gave a remarkably interesting address at the Congregational church last Sunday morning. He showed the influences of Christianity upon the life of the people on its direct and indirect sides, cases of individual change were cited, but the main power of western religious ideas was affirmed to be at work in a deeper way. All India is in a state of intellectual ferment upon religious and social questions. This is seen in the desire for education as well as in efforts for a more spiritual religion inside of Hindulsm itself. It is these deeper forces which the truer thought and life of the Christian church must guide, and is beginning to guide. The address was philosophical, and it was practical. In the evening Rev. John H. Hincks of Atlanta university described the admirably economical and efficient work of that insti aution in behalf of the colored man, and narrated the history of individuals who have already made their mark, as the best proof of the value of the university work in solving the problem of the South annual collection for foreign missions, taken in the morning, amounted to a

An audience of moderate size watched and listened with absorbing interest at the town hall on Tuesday evening, as Mrs. B. Williamson, jr., of Elizabeth, N. J., devel-oped her able and entertaining lecture on "Greek art and mythology," Beginning with a glance at the origin of mythology lost in the primeval mists, the lecturer traced the growth and development of the of Ulysses and his return, and closed her entertainment with a brilliant series of individual figures of the ancient mythology accompanied with brief descriptions-Cupic and Psyche, Venus and Apollo, Pandora, Endymion, Prometheus bound, the head of Medusa, Persephone, Orpheus, Œdipus and the wonderful legends which surround his name, and so on the end. The lecture proved the wonderful familiarity of Mrs. illiamson with her subject, as well as he ability to interest her hearers and to inspire them with a wish to undertake research in this delightful field for their own education and entertainment. The photographic views were very large in number, and were thrown upon the screen by Mr. C. M. Rus-sell and his assistant in a very perfect way. The net receipts from the lecture were $59. The expenses for the stereopticon and its operation and for printing were $15, leaving the sum of $44 net to be added to the fund of the Rural Improvement society. The case against C. P. Gilson of West Chesterfield came up in the Cheshire county court at Keene, N. Henry J. Cudworth of Hartford, Conn Henry J. Cudworth of Hartford, Conn., formerly of Brattleboro and son of T. J. B. Cudworth, and Miss Irene M. The bride wore a gown of dove-colored corded silk and carried a homography of pink room. a bouquet of pink roses. The ushers were Arthur L. Whitney of Springfield, James S. Hubbard, Fred R. Brewer and Charles P. O'Neil of Hartford. Following the wedding there was a reception at the home of the bride, No. 63 Madison street, where Mr. and Mrs. Cudworth will receive after Nov. 1. Many presents were received, including valuable ones from the employes of the Pratt & Whitney machine where Mr. Cudworth was formerly employed, and from those of the Colt arms many, where he now has a position. Many Brattleboro friends of Mr. Cudworth will join in best wishes. Mr. and Mrs. T. J. B. Cudworth, Ralph Cudworth and

Mrs. G. E. Warner attended the wedding. The old depot building on the railroad ounds has been leased to G. F. and E. C swift of Boston, the Eastern branch of the Swift refrigerating company of Chicago, and work is now in progress to fit it up for a beef house, or a local supply station for the sale of Western dressed meats of all kinds and salt and smoked meats. The entire interior of the building has been torn out. When the remodelling is completed there will be a refrigerator 34 feet long in the centre. In the south end there will be a salesroom and office, and in the north end there will be stalls for the horses to be kept by the company. A railroad side track runs in the rear of the building, and meats will be taken direct from the refrigerator cars into the building on a series of overhead tracks. When in oper ation the station will employ a manager, salesman, bookkeeper and teamster. Goods will be sold and delivered from the station to the local trade, including the towns about Brattleboro. The station is similar to those which are being established all over New England, the company already having houses at Burlington, St. Albans, Montpelier and Rutland, and at Greenfield and Northampton and many other places in Massachusetts. The Brattleboro station will be completed and put in operation the last of December. An unexpected business change this week is the sale by Barber Brothers of the Brooks House shoe store to Sewall Morse, the well-known musician and telegraph operator, and Fred U. Simpson of New York, formerly of Brattleboro. When Barber Brothers bought the business last spring they made a verbal trade for the sale of their general merchandise store at West Townshend, but this trade the parties of the other part failed to carry out, and both stores were thus unexpectedly left on the hands of Barber Brothers, and the sale of the Brattleboro store is due to the fact that both stores could not be advantage ously handled by them. Their boot and shoe business is understood to be in a pros serous condition and has shown gratifying percuis condition and has shown gratifying increase during their management. Mr. Theodore Barber, who has been in charge, will return to West Townshend for the present. The new firm take possession on he last day of October. Mr. Simpson, who will have the actual management of the store, has had much experience in this line of business. From 1878 to 1881 he was employed in the store of E. T. Van derbilt of Brooklyn, N. Y., one of the largest in that city. From 1881 to 1887 Mr. Simpson lived in Brattleboro. He went back to New York and entered the store of A. J. Cammeyer, the largest retail dealer of shoes in the country, and in two years was promoted to the position of assistant buyer, which he resigned in order to become manager of "The Howard," a Broadway store. For some time he has been in the employ of Rogers, Peet & Co., for whom he is now head salesman. THE PROFESSIONAL CLUB.

Hon. Dorman B. Eaton Opposes a Second Term for Presidents. The Professional club opened the season of 1891-92 with a very successful meeting, held at the Brooks House on Monday even-Hon. Dorman B. Eaton, the essayist, took for his topic "A second term a temp-tation to Presidents and a peril to the country." His paper was a painstaking and exhaustive treatment of the subject, both historically and otherwise. back to the convention which framed our onstitution Mr. Eaton showed how largely discussion of the length of term of the President and the question of his eligibility entered into the deliberations of that body. The subject was under discussion at inter vals for a period covering nearly the entire ummer. During its first stages the sentiment was strongly in favor of a term of six, seven or eight years in length, with a provision forbidding reflection. At the very last, however, when the minds of the members had been reduced to a sort of chaotic state on this question, the senti with eligibility to reclection was the result The official tire-alarm instruction cards, the belief being that by means of election has been the result, and instead In the suit brought a year ago last electors choosing a President they act or the political parties, behind then Eaton urged with great force that the tendency and effect under our present system chine for his own reelection The following, from the food and health | his party in power. Few papers read before the club have called out more animated discussion. Many of the speakers were inclined to disagree with Mr. Eaton as to the matter of forbidfing the reclection of President, holding that in this great office, as in lesser ones, it should be left to the option of the people to reward an able and faithful servant, by continuing him in his office more than one term. There was a general agreement, however, upon the fact that our present presidential term is too short, and that ice in four years is too often to plunge he whole country into the exciteme national canvass, temporarily disturbing and even stopping almost entirely the ordinary course of business. At the concluion of the debate Mr. Eaton replied with great force, born of profound conviction, to the objections which had been raised to the sositions taken by him.

The officers elected at the business ceting for the ensuing term were: President, Dr. J. Draper; executive committee, Rev. C. O. Day, Rev. A. H. Webb, Comnander A. D. Brown.

Hon, James H. Phelps, a well-known citizen of Vermont, for the last three or four years a resident of Suffield, Conn., is his old home in West Townshend. He stops with his brother-in-law, Mr. Charles Robbins. The greater part of each day he spends in his office at the old Phelps man-, which he inherited from his father, the Hon. Chas. Phelps. The office is full of rare old books and treasures of all sorts and kinds which have come down to him from previous generations of the family. Full of curious information of every kind connected with the history of the state and other departments of the literary world, the judge can answer almost every question in those fields where his information lies, if you will wait till he has a chance to visit his library.

THURSDAY EVENING'S CONCERT.

The opening concert in the Y. M. C. A. course was an unqualified success. The opening bars of Haydn's Andante proclaimed the members of the club to be artists, and the program throughout, while thoroughly artistic, was of that popular character that secures and retains popular interest and appreciation. The first of the club to display his virtuosoship was Mons. Rucquoy, the flutist, and in the "Souvenir de Baden," his own composition, he captured every listener, and the beauty of it was that he seemed only to be toying with his instrument, even in the most marvelous and Intricate movements.

The same could be said of Mr. La Seur, the 'cellist. It was difficult for one not conversant with the possibilities of that wonderful instrument, to realize that such expression. such delicacy of touch and shading, such don is greeting his many friends in town, compass of tone lie wrapped up in it. The Wm. Mather is to move from Front street. retalltion of "Traumerei," in response to the tremendous encore, was the more satisfactory because of late the fashion has been to rush it through without a thought of ought but a somewhat monotonous sucession of crescendo and diminuendo. this case the soul of the composer found

Mons. Kapp, the leader, was much ap-preciated both on account of his modest canor and preeminent ability. Fantasie brilliante by that terror of medioviolinists, DeBeriot, was most charmingly rendered. Of the vocalists, Miss Burnham easily held the first place, although Mr. Lloyd is a most excellent tenor. Miss Burnham, like all other sopranos, is consciously or unconsciously brought into comparis with "our Mary," and so far as purity and execution of the highest notes are concerned must, of course, suffer by the compari It must be said, however, that no soprano has for a long time appeared here who has made a better and stronger impression than Miss Burnham. With a voice specially pleasing, strong and soul-ful in the medium and lower registers, and with no stage trickery whatever, she sang herself into the esteem of her audience The ever happy "Comin' thro' the rye, as an encore, was a pleasant diversion after the more pretentions "Carnival."

Mr. Lloyd did not "strike twelve" in his first number. It was a disappointment to some that the beautiful air from Buck's 'Dou Munio" was omitted, and his render ing of "My Native Land" was not specially pleasing. It can be said that he fully redeemed himself in his passionate electrifying rendering of the "prison scene" from Il Trovatore, with the soprano, Miss Burnham. To many this number was the crowning feature of the evening. In these lines no mention has been made of the work of the club in their concerted numbers. Perhaps it is not too much to concede to them the palm for their conception of what constitutes perfect and continuous delight for an andie not too heavy, not too light, but just right." There is no space left to speak of their work at length. Perhaps their most piquant, crisp deliverance was the intermezzo from the twenty-six-year-old composer Mascagni's new opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana:" although all their numbers were noticeable for perfect sympathy be-tween players, a quality which goes far toward producing that perfection of en-semble playing for which the Boston Symphony Orchestra is noted. "Come again! was the feeling of all.

They came from Brattleboro and tramped to Wilmington by the way of Dover, beg-ging as they went. One of them claimed to have a broken arm, but on examination the arm was found to be perfectly sound Search of their persons showed $35 secreted thereon. One of them had a pair of new gloves inside his stocking, and they had one or more wax candles. The names and addresses of persons in Massachusetts and Rhode Island were also found. Sheriff Kidder and Mr. Ware, who went to Bennington, caused their detention until further information can be gained about them, and they are still held under suspicion.

GRANGE NEWS. Windham county Pomona grange held

a meeting with Protective grange, Brattle-boro, on Wednesday. The morning session was devoted to instructing a class in the fifth degree, and business. The reports from subordinate granges were encouraging. After dinner we were enter-tained with music, and a welcome was exended to those present by a member of Protective grange and responded to by one from Broad Brook grange. The discussion of the school law was opened by one of the Vernon members, who in an able and interesting manner showed the necessity for a change from the present law, and suggested some remedies. She plainly showed that the present system of taxation was unjust, and thought that a state tax would be a better way. The speaker also considered the present method of providing school books to be wrong; they should be furnished by the state; also, that the town system was to be preferred to the district system. She thought that towns be united into a district over which a supervisor should be placed who would give his attention to the school work, and not expect one person to do all the work necessary in this county. Her remarks called forth many questions and considerable dis-
